

SURREY

This report is a tribute to those who were homeless in Surrey on the night of the count and who shared their stories in order to help us to better understand homelessness across the Metro Vancouver region.

A person was considered homeless for the purpose of this count if they did not have a place of their own where they could expect to stay for more than 30 days and if they did not pay rent. This included people who:

- Had no physical shelter – who were staying 'outside', in alleys, doorways, parkades, parks and vehicles;
- Were staying temporarily in emergency shelters for the homeless, transition houses for women and children fleeing violence, and safe houses for youth;
- Had no fixed address and were staying temporarily in a hospital, jail or detox facility; and
- Were staying temporarily at someone else's place (couch surfing).

The sheltered homeless includes all homeless individuals in the count who were identified as homeless and who stayed overnight in an emergency shelter for the homeless, transition house for women and children fleeing violence, or safe house for youth during the count. It also includes individuals with no fixed address who were staying temporarily in a hospital, jail or detox facility during the count.

The unsheltered homeless includes all homeless individuals in the count who completed a street survey and who had no physical shelter (i.e. were staying 'outside', in alleys, doorways, parkades, parks and vehicles). It also includes people who were staying temporarily at someone else's place (couch surfing) and who were found on the street or at a homeless service on the day of the count.¹
